Research Into Past

Would Be Interesting

How fond we are of prophecy! There is a steady and unflinching demand for prognostications; the novelists and utopia-mongers, the scientific popularizers are ready to supply it. We read in an endless succession of books and pamphlets and newspaper articles about the future of politics and marriage, of art and war, of cooking, science, religion, clothes, flying machines, morals and a thousand other things. Among the few important entities about which nobody, so far as I am aware, has yet written a prophecy is the Past. This is the more surprising, since our interest in times gone by is as keen as our interest in time to come. A prognostication of the Future of the Past, based on a study of the Past's past and the Past's present, should make a multiple appeal to the "time snobs" of this age. Researches into the Past of the Future would be scarcely less popular.—Aldous Huxley, in Vanity Fair Magazine.

"Haunted" by an Odor

A Monmouthshire farmhouse here is "haunted" by an odor of violets, says the Newport (England) correspondent of the Associated Press.

An overpowering perfume of freshly-gathered violets fills one of the rooms to such an extent that the tenant has had to vacate it, and although the floorboards have been examined and the walls disintegrated the odor persists. The house is nearly three hundred years old.

A legend has been unearthed of a girl who was stabbed on her wedding morning by a jilted lover, and the story says that she was killed while arranging a bowl of violets.

The farmer discredits the tale, but careful investigation leaves the mystery unsolved.

Would Scrap Gibraltar

Surrounded by the world's oldest civilizations, the Mediterranean yet has never been completely explored for its fauna. This is peculiar owing to the virtual separation of the Mediterranean waters from those of the Atlantic because of the shallowness of the strait of Gibraltar. A Danish hydrographer who has made a life study of the Mediterranean proposes that Gibraltar, which forms a natural barrier for marine currents, be tunneled or blasted away so as to establish better circulation between the ocean and the sea. A bigger channel, he believes, would lead to phenomenal changes in the Mediterranean bed.

A Severe Critic

He had bought an old violin from a second-hand dealer, and on arriving home decided to try the instrument out.

He found his piece of music, and soon the air was filled with the results of his flying bow.

Hearing the unusual sounds, his Scots landlady suddenly appeared at the foot of the stairs.

"Mr. Ham," she shouted, her fingers in her ears, "What are ye daein'?"

"Playing a violin I've just bought," returned the boarder.

"Guldness!" exclaimed the other, "For an awfu' moment I thoct ye were shittin' the bed, ye ken."—London Answers.

Music and Poetry

Byron had no ear for music, and Rossetti found the art "cool unto the sense of pain." Shelley had a voice, it is said, like a peacock's, and Tennyson had only verbal music in him. Sir Humphrey Davy had a fine perception of the beautiful in nature, but had so poor an ear for sound that he could not even catch the simple air of the British national anthem. He was also deficient in time, for while a member of a volunteer corps he could never keep step.

Forgiving Friends

Friendship, says the American Magazine, is half made up of overlooking or forgiving the human failings of those one likes.

Ocean Holds Account

of Columbus' Voyage

When Christopher Columbus returned to Spain from the New world, he stopped on February 14, 1493, at Santa Maria, one of the islands of the Azores, probably to take water. Four days before this he had encountered a severe storm and was convinced that he, his men and his vessels must perish. Columbus realized in his heart that he was going back to Spain with news of a discovery second in importance to no other, and when it seemed that his ship would sink at any moment, he set to work to make a record of his mighty undertaking, hoping that by some will of the fates it would not be lost to posterity. So he carefully prepared as complete an account of his voyage as was possible. He wrote the details of his journey on a stout piece of parchment, wrapped it in a piece of waterproof cloth, then placed it in an iron-bound barrel and threw it into the ocean. But the fates were kinder to Columbus than to this account, for it never was found.—S. W. Rosenbach, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Leave It to the Wife

"I dunno why women want to nag so," complained Mr. Wombat.

"What's wrong now?"

"There's always something wrong. Either I'm home too late or I'm home too early. Maybe I got dandruff on my coat collar or soup on my vest. It's this, that and the other. My wife is always finding some flaw."

"They mean it for your good, old man," advised his sagacious friend. "A wife wants her husband to appear at his best. To keep him so is a labor of love."

"Will it always be that way?"

"I fear so. Even if you were an angel, your wife might well find a feather misplaced now and then."—Yonkers Statesman.

Odd Census Taking

Nopultzin, chief of the Chichimec tribe of Indians that once inhabited the valley of Mexico, devised a simple plan for taking the census of his subjects. Under his system no census-taker trod upon the newly washed front porch of the careful housewife, leaving footprints in sticky clay. Nor did the agent inquire into the private matter of the family head. Instead, each subject placed a small stone for each member of his family. Carriers then collected the stones and hauled them to an open field, where they were counted and placed in heaps. Twelve of these heaps have been discovered by scientists and a count of the stones indicates the Chichimec tribe contained 3,200,000 members.

Truthfulness in Child

A way to promote a virtue is to give the child the reputation for having it. We all show unmistakable tendencies to live up to labels fastened upon us; if the child gets the idea that he is a liar, he is likely to tell lies. On the other hand, if he believes that he is a truth-teller his habits will conform to that picture. Better still, of course, is to let him live in an atmosphere of truth. If a child is brought up in a home where truth telling is regarded as a simple matter of course, he is likely to develop into a truth-telling child.—Winthrop D. Lane in the Delineator Magazine.

The Wrong Place

One day Mrs. B— saw a bill collector coming and decided to hide. She stepped into a pantry out of sight of the door and let him knock and knock. Finally he gave up and went away to return another day.

The next time he called Mrs. B— was ready with her payment and went to the door.

Just as he was leaving the agent called back: "If you ever want to hide from me again choose some better place than the pantry. The mirror in your buffet showed me just where you were."

Courts Uphold Cow's Right to Costly Path

Chicago has a $2,000,000 monument to a cow in the form of a 22-story office building. A clause in the deed of the site of the new building necessitated a clever bit of cantilever construction in order to have the upper 21 stories 10 feet wider than the first floor.

It seems that years ago a Doctor Bassett owned the site and an adjoining site upon which he had his cow barn. The former became desirable for business, but the doctor would not sell it unless it was stipulated in the deed that a ten-foot strip along the west end of the lot be kept perpetually free for passage, so that his cow could travel back and forth to pasture freely. Despite the fact that several attempts have been made to nullify the clause, the courts uphold it. Thus Chicago's claim of being the only city respecting the humble cow with a $2,000,000 tribute.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Led Freedom of Thought

The colony and college of Oberlin, Ohio, were founded more than 90 years ago as "an effort to hasten the coming of the kingdom of Christ on earth." It was also a daring experiment in offering higher education to women along with men. Later the same opportunities were extended to members of the then enslaved race. At a later period, 1893, Oberlin became the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon league. These and kindred movements were but the natural outgrowth of the spirit shown in "The Oberlin Covenant," which embodied the program of the colony, and showed how socially minded were these pioneers in a day when individualism reigned in religion as well as in economics.

Wine or Whine of Life

In every line of practical endeavor, where that endeavor is sturdily kept up, men will meet with blows and wounds and reverses, and the man who has never suffered has never sought. He who can receive a blow as a compliment to his manhood, take it with a grin, and "carry on," cannot be beaten. The true wine of life is in his veins. But he who whines when reverses come his way is foredoomed to failure.

The true wine of life is only obtained through the pressure of life, just as the juice of the grape comes from the wine press; and the grapes of life are the fruits of experience.—F. Allison Barton in Psychology Magazine.

Nothing Open and Hungry

The family was seated at the breakfast table—five grownups and Virginia, age five. Before her was a glass of milk and an empty plate. She saw the butter being passed, the jelly being passed and watched her mother hand over toast to one of the three who had to be at work at 8 a. m. At last with great impatience she said, "Daddy, is downtown open yet?"

"Why, no," said her father, wondrously. "Why do you ask?"

"Well," said Virginia, "I thought it was open I'd go downtown and get me something to eat."—Indianapolis News.

Her Way of Knowing

Jean, age four, knew every one in the neighborhood.

"Who is that lady who passes our house each day?" the child's mother asked her one day.

"I don't know her name," replied Jean, "but I know where she lives."

"And how did you learn where she lives?"

"I saw her yesterday peeling a chicken in her back yard," was the ready response.

Cranky

"If a crank is somebody who knows exactly what he wants and who insists and persists until he gets it," says a writer in the American Magazine, "put me down as the worst crank in town."

PRAIRIE DOGS' RAID STEMMED BY POISON

Thousands of Pasture Rodents Killed in Utah.

Vernal, Utah.—The sparsely settled expanse of terrain included in what is known as the Utah basin, embracing 6,000 square miles of northeastern Utah lands and inhabited by less than 30,000 people—including about 1,500 Indians of the White River, Ute and Uncompahgre tribes residing on the Utah-Ogury reservation—constantly has new problems arising.

In the basin are vast stretches of public domain and on these tracts a class of destructive rodents became so numerous that the forage on public lands no longer supplied the needed sustenance for their maintenance. So these rodents, prairie dogs, more and more encroached on the cultivated areas of the dry farmers and great areas of growing crops fell prey to their voracious appetites. It may readily be seen that the loss to farmers has risen into hundreds of thousands of dollars when it is realized that, according to data secured by the United States biological survey, one prairie dog will, and does, destroy enough forage in one year to sustain ten sheep during the same period.

Poison Spread Over Area.

To remedy the evil the county agricultural survey joined in preparing ten tons of oats treated with the proper quantity of strychnine to transform the mixture into a deadly poison, and this bait was spread broadcast over the infested areas. Prairie dogs numbering thousands were killed each day and the farmers felt that one particular annoyance to their welfare had been terminated permanently.

But a difficulty arose and of a nature which had not been anticipated. After 125 ranchers and farmers, including more than 50 Indian farmers, had for a month been engaged in the work of spreading the poison potion, a delegation of Indians requested that an immediate halt be called to further spreading of poisoned oats within a radius of three miles from any Indian farm or settlement. The spokesman of the delegation, Red Cap, one of the leaders of the White River tribe, through an interpreter, spoke as follows:

"You listen to me. I am gray with wisdom. You come, poison the prairie dogs. No food for my people. Our dogs eat the dead prairie dogs, and then our dogs they die. No food; our people starve to death. We ask our Big White Chief in Washington to stop this thing. First we ask you, now. If you not listen then we get Washington paper to stop you."

Indians' Anger Appeased.

The persuasive powers of the biological survey men, the Indian service and the county authorities were required to enlighten Red Cap to the extent that, in reality, a favor was being done him instead of damage. The Indians of the reservation are well taken care of by Uncle Sam and many of the Indian farmers are among the most successful tillers of the soil in the Utah basin.

On a well-remembered occasion the writer, while hunting fossils in a northern Arizona desert, found evening approaching with no cottontail, no prairie dog offering as a sacrifice to appease the hunger of one who had tramped the hot sands since 6 a. m. A splendid water hole was found, but the larder in the pack was exhausted—with the nearest habitation more than 15 miles distant.

Was Too Much

Yonkers, N. Y.—For 15 years, Mrs. John Bruke declares, she practiced dodging crockery and the smaller articles of household furniture, becoming in a modest way adept at sidestepping. But when John added a dozen eggs to his daily barrage she considered it too raw and appealed to law.

Hippos Sweat Red,

but It Isn't Blood

Washington.—Does the hippopotamus sweat blood?

The pair of these mammoth beasts at the zoo are of the same variety as the "blood-sweating" behemoth of the Nile, mentioned in the Bible. During the hot days the zoo attendants have noted drops of reddish liquid standing out on the backs of these animals whenever they exerted themselves.

This looks very much like blood oozing through the skin, but according to Dr. William M. Mann, zoo director, it is the result of a peculiar carmine pigment in the skin consisting of small crystals and corpuscles, which is brought out by the sweat. This peculiarity probably is useful to the giant river horse in its native Africa to scare away natural enemies.

It is, however, entirely absent from the pigmy hippo recently received from Liberia as a gift to President Coolidge from Harvey L. Firestone. This little fellow sweats profusely when he runs around his pen and soon is covered with white lather like that which appears on a heated horse. Apparently the protective pigment is entirely lacking.

Librarian Ballard Holt has received for the library a copy of "The Lawson History of the American Cup, a Record of Fifty Years," by Winfield M. Thompson and Thomas W. Lawson. This book was gotten up at the instance of Thomas W. Lawson for private distribution and is said to have cost him $100,000. Three thousand volumes were printed, Andover receiving No. 1394.

Rt. Wor. Albert S. Manning, district deputy of the 10th Masonic district and suite accompanied by a number of members of St. Matthew's Lodge, paid an official visit to John Hancock Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Methuen last Friday night.

Mrs. N. F. Abbott has sold through the agency of George A. Parker a lot of land on Avon street to A. S. Robertson of Lawrence.

A directors' meeting of the Andover Village Improvement society was held Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. L. Clark. It was announced that a survey was being made of the triangular plot of land between North Main street and South Union street, opposite Walter S. Donald's, Frye Village, and that the society would try to improve its appearance.

In a letter from Griffin, Georgia, from Mrs. William Marland, is news of interest. In the first place the material improvement in Mr. Marland's health and Miss Helen Marland's convalescence will be welcome information to all. The major has turned farmer and is engaged in laying out a plot of land for small fruits. He still retains his connection with the Park Commission in Andover, having paid real and personal taxes for 1902. He wishes it known that he favors a football and baseball field on Richardson field. Mrs. Marland writes that the temperature at their front door on the south piazza has not been over 94 degrees this summer.

While Williston gave Andover a rather hard game last Saturday afternoon, the local eleven won by a score of 12 to 0.

At the park at Wakefield, Saturday, Punsard High defeated Wakefield High, 16 to 0.

The annual meeting of the Andover Guild was held at the Guild house last Tuesday evening. The report of the treasurer showed that the total receipts for the year had been $1307.76, the total expenses $1261.19 and that the property of the Guild amounted to $4420.21. The superintendent reported that sixteen families had been helped in illness, or with food, clothing or fuel. The Guild has met half the expense of treatment of a child at the Children's Hospital and is supplying nourishment and comfort for the serious illness of a child in town. A widow with three children coming to town from a foreign country was helped to establish housekeeping. She is now comfortably settled with all the members of the family working. The report of the Summer school showed that the school had been in session from July 15 to August 22, that its membership had been limited to boys between eight and fourteen years of age and that the enrollment had been fifty-one and that the course had consisted of instruction in sloyd, printing, nature study, music, swimming, basket work and raffia weaving. The cost of the school together with the other classes maintained throughout the year by the Guild has amounted this year to $689. The following persons were elected officers of the Guild for the current year: Directors, Bernard M. Allen, Rev. A. T. Belknap, J. Newton Cole, Alexander Dick, Mrs. William G. Goldsmith, Miss Annie Hinkley, Miss Margaret Keane, Miss M. B. Mills, Corwin F. Palmer, Rev. Frederic Palmer, Mrs. Evelyn Reed, Alfred L. Ripley, Rev. F. R. Shipman, Mrs. H. H. Tyler, Mrs. H. F. Over one hundred guests and members of Andover Council No. 65, Royal Arcanum enjoyed the hospitality of the Council at an entertainment and smoke talk in Erncran hall, Musgrave block, last Friday evening. Just previous to the entertainment, John V. Holt rose and announced that Andover Council was proud to have among her members a Past Grand Regent and after a few pleasant words he unveiled and presented to the Council a crayon portrait of Charles W. Clark. The committee on the entertainment and smoke talk consisted of Charles W. Clark, M. L. Farnham, William B. Cheever, Alexander Dick, and T. Frank Pratt. On the picture committee were William B. Cheever, Charles B. Jenkins and John V. Holt.

No one appeared to object to the removal of the two trees on Elm street opposite the house of John H. Flint occupied by John W. Bell and John V. Holt at the tree hearing in the Town Clerk's office. Selectman Boutwell said that the trees ought to come down from the fact that the new layout of the street left the trees in the middle of the sidewalk, where they were in the way and a menace to public safety.

Owing to reasons of health, Colonel George Ripley has resigned his position as treasurer of Abbot academy. The increased duties of the trusteeship, coming with the care of the McKen Memorial fund together with the routine work of his office, have been more than Mr. Ripley cared to undertake. In his place the trustees elected Samuel Lester, Fuller of Andover, son of Dr. Fuller of School street.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Free church, the election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. J. Newton Cole; vice president, Mrs. Stephen Jackson; secretary, Miss Ada Buchanan; treasurer, Miss Agnes Smith; directors, Mrs. Henry Russell, Mrs. David Lindsay, Mrs. Charles Hussey, Mrs. John Richardson and Mrs. Joshua Paine.

Following the wedding, a reception was held from seven to nine o'clock at Mr. and Mrs. Bodwell's future home at 2 Florence street. The ushers were Walter M. Lamont, Stuart J. Smith, Clinton M. Pomeroy and Charles A. Bodwell.

Little Dorothy Cutler observed her second birthday last Saturday afternoon and fourteen of her small friends of the neighborhood were present to help her celebrate. They had a splendid time.

A farewell reception was held at St. Augustine's church last Sunday evening in honor of the pastor, Rev. Daniel J. O'Mahoney, O. S. A., who is about to take his departure for a mission to the Philippines. Extraordinary, Perhaps But Typical

According to statistics, seven years ago the 20th Century Bread sales ranked fifth among the seven leading bakers of bread.

Wall Paper Included in Fashion Changes

In the general run of fashions by which all things come and go, wall paper has by no means escaped the varying cycles as is evidenced by the various styles of this home decoration in vogue at different times. In short, walls have run the gamut of landscapes, large flowers, small flowers, large figures, small figures, geometrical designs, and conventionalized patterns, and then have gone over it all again.

As things go, wall paper is not so old. The decoration of house interiors did not begin to take on anything of a complex aspect until after the Middle Ages were well over. Then the Renaissance changed all existing standards of decoration, and tapestries gave place to fabrics of lighter texture. The next step was paper, and the earliest known wall paper dates from the seventeenth century. Contrary to what one would expect, the earliest papers were not representations of landscapes or other scenes, nor were they the allegorical or historical subjects that later were spread over the walls. They were comparatively simple conventionalized designs of flowers and arabesques.

The Renaissance was of the greatest importance to our civilization perhaps in that it gave the beauty enjoyed by the very wealthy class to all the people. The tapestries, leathers, costly brocades, and damasks which had beautified the rooms where persons of means dwelt were obviously out of reach of those in humbler circumstances. They could not afford the gorgeous trappings of the rich, and yet the desire for beauty was strong within them. More and more articles of furniture were coming into use by people in general. The beds, stools, cupboards and tables, which were practically the sole furnishings of the homes of the Middle Ages, were augmented by chairs, a greater variety of tables, more luxurious beds, and cabinets. Humbler homes had furniture and there were chairs for all members of the family instead of only for the master of the house and the guest.

Then with the advent of furniture in a home came a desire for better settings for it, and the art of interior decorating may be said to have been born. Since tapestries and silk fabrics were costly, the "poor man's tapestry," wall paper, came into more or less general use.

The earliest date in connection with wall paper is 1509. In that year one Hugo Goes stamped velvet on paper with a design like Genoeve velvet on one side and on the other a pattern announcing the accession of Henry VIII, to the throne. These were used for covering ceiling beams in Christ's College, Cambridge, and the date was assured because it was known that this construction had taken place then.

Next, in France, an edict of Henri IV in 1537 attests the existence of makers of wall paper designed to take the place of tapestries and other hangings. In 1568 in Holland a Dutch printer named Hermann Schinkel is known to have made block-printed papers in Delft. In France in 1586 a charter was granted to a corporation called the Guild of Dominators, Tappissiers, and Imagiers to make wall hangings consisting of stencilled upholstery and hand-colored papers, and in the early history of wall paper, began making flock papers in Rouen.

Flock paper introduced a new method into the fabrication of wall paper. The designs were printed on the paper, not with ink, but with a greasy sort of varnish, and on this substance powdered wool was sprinkled. It stuck to the wet surface and slid off from the dry, and the result was an imitation of broadcloth velvet.

This process was adopted by Jerome Lanyer in England in 1634, who applied it chiefly to "linnen cloth, silk, cotton and leather." There was a reason apparently why more paper was not decorated after this fashion, and that was the quality of the paper. In 1685 John Bristow patented a machine for making white paper and this overcame the difficulties that had existed before, and put wall paper on its feet as well as on the walls of the houses, for it was now tough enough to hang together so that it could safely be pasted and applied to the walls.

Wall paper in Germany apparently dates from 1670, when a factory for making it was established in Nuremberg.

The Chinese influence in wall paper is most important, because it affected for many years all the countries where wall paper was made. About the middle of the seventeenth century there grew up in Europe a passion for a touch of the Orient in design, fostered and brought about by the East India companies. Almost the whole field of decorative design was affected by it, and wall paper did not escape. The first papers brought from China were printed, but were colored by hand on rice paper. They were gifts to the Western traders, but they were immediately popular and resulted in orders when the traders went back.

The Chinese influence in wall paper extended well through the middle of the eighteenth century and both England and America possess examples that came from China. So do France and Italy. Wall paper makers from the West strove to copy the Chinese designs, as they did in porcelain also, and in fact all branches of household ornamentation.

Of greatest interest to us are the scenic papers, because there are so many examples of them extant on the walls of old houses and because they occupied a large place in the development of an art appreciation in this country. They came from the last part of the eighteenth century and the first to have originated in France. Since at that time America was turning to France rather than to England for its fashions, the scenic papers quickly spread to this country, especially after the beginning of the nineteenth century. They may not have been accurate representations of the scenes they served to portray, but they were colorful, and decorative, and added a touch to American severity of home decoration that proved valuable. The prevalence of these papers may be judged from the fact that Nancy McClelland, in her book "Historic Wallpapers," lists 143 examples of scenic papers still in existence.

How Much Water Flows Over Niagara Falls?

How much water flows over the great Niagara cataract? Engineers measured the flow in the Niagara River in 1917 and concluded that 2,000 cubic feet per second made the drop—the biggest drop of water in America. Since 1917 the level of water in Lake Erie has lowered slightly, thus reducing the flow over the Falls. In order to determine how much, engineers have shot a line across the river at Goat Island just above the Falls and are installing a cable from which soundings of the river depth will be made. They will soon know the rate of flow, almost to the gallon, and can then calculate how much of the water is put to work making electricity and how much is wasted. About 96% of the river goes over the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side. The center of the crest is moving backward eight feet each year.

Essex County Health Association Ask for Cooperation

Upon the co-operations of the citizens of this County will depend the amount of tuberculosis work done here during the coming year. This was made clear today by Dr. Walter G. Phippen, vice president of the Essex County Health Association.

"In connection with the co-operation of the people," Dr. Phippen said, "I would like to emphasize a point which has already been brought out but which has escaped the attention of some, namely that the amount of work to be done in the County by the Association during the coming year, is directly dependent upon the financial assistance of the people."

"It is felt by the Directors and contributors that more field work should be done here, more contact should be made with the actual tuberculosis sufferer, effort should be made to locate such cases as early as possible to put them in contact with whatever facilities for care are available. It is necessary to educate the patients and their families as to the care of the sick person and the prevention of the spread of the disease; to make available to the children of the smaller schools of the County some of the advantages in the way of health inspection such as are now available to the city school children; to extend and enlarge the summer health camp work; and to demonstrate to the public at large through lectures, Movies and the like, modern methods of treatment and care of the patient."

Plans for the 1928 tuberculosis work include many of the above projects, predicting a busy year for the Essex County Health Association.

Agricultural School Notes

The students of the Homemaking Department gave a demonstration of hats which they have made this fall at the school assembly on Friday of last week. These hats are the felts which are so popular this fall and each of the students in the Senior, Junior, and High School Special classes has made one or more. These attractive hats cost less than one dollar and are made in the most attractive colors and designs.

More than one-third of the students of the Homemaking Department are contestants in the Annual Truck Meet and a great deal of interest has been shown in the training. Mildred Russell of Danvers is the Captain and Esther Perkins of Newburyport is the Manager. Instructor Couhig of the Agricultural Department has been coaching the girls.

North America has over forty-six times as many telephones as South America.
In proportion to population, Michigan has about five times as many telephones as the Netherlands.
In proportion to population, there are about ten times as many telephones in the United States as there are in Europe.
About five and a half million miles of wire were added to the Bell Telephone System in the United States during 1926.
Forty-nine of the original 241 subscribers to telephone service in New York City 48 years ago are still listed in the New York telephone directory.
The first recorded use of a telephone in a sporting event was on September 14, 1877, when a telephone was installed at the rifle range at Creedmoor, L. I., during the International Rifle Contest. This telephone line was placed between the firing platform and the targets and was used to report the scoring. Previous to that time, scoring had been reported by a man on horseback.
Telephone service is now installed between 8 cities in the United States.

Fisheries experts and scientists have been unable to ascertain accurately how sponges feed. An ordinary sponge will grow from one to one and one-half inches or more a year. The portion of the sponge with which we are familiar is the skeleton or framework of the sea product as it exists in the briny deep. The slimy, gelatinous substance is decomposed by wind, weather and sunshine and subsequent soaking in sea-water cures out any gelatinous material which still adheres to the sponges.

Scientists have discovered sixty-six kinds of birds which eat the cotton boll weevil.

Autumn Hikes

"Now is the heyday for the hiker!" says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. Don't let a week go by without one good hike, a half day at least—a whole day, if possible. At the worst, start at 5 p.m. take your supper along, build a good fire, (after securing a permit from the local Fire Warden) along the beach or brookside and eat by the light of your fire and the moon. Try to get the whole family started.

This is the joy season for hikers—no mosquitoes, nor black flies—how these pests did multiply this summer! No hot sticky evenings; the air is clear and bracing—your feet simply "eat up the road!"

Although "don'ts" in the long run are poor stuff there are a couple we never can resist giving the prospective hiker—you'll be doing them out yourself next year.
Don't wear a lot of clothes because you think it is going to be cold. Remember two light layers of clothing are far warmer than one heavy garment. A light sweater under a heavy one will keep you comfortable and the outer can easily be removed when you "warm up." Wear those old sport shoes you liked so well during your vacation.

Don't carry a ton of food but fill a small knapsack with a few strips of bacon, crackers, cheese, dried fruit and nuts. If a cup of hot coffee is worth the trouble of carrying a pail—a good way is to pack all the food in the pail and with a stick through the bail two people can easily carry it. Hot bacon (no use to burden yourself with a frying pan, sizzle it on a stick) and hot drinks add so much to the fire—it is much more of a hike when you "cook on the trail!"

Leave your hat and your worries at home. Doctors say, Fresh Air and Exercise will all attend you—they only fee a cheerful heart—and they will guarantee to cure all your ills!

How Indians Made Their Arrowheads

Among the Apaches every tribe had its factory in which arrowheads were made and in which only certain adepts were allowed to make them for the use of the tribe. Boulders of flint were collected and broken into pieces with a sort of sledge hammer made of a rounded pebble of hornstone set in a twisted with which held the stone and formed a handle. Such flakes of the flint were selected as from their angles of fracture and their thickness would form the basis of an arrowhead. The master workman, seated on the ground, laid one of these flakes on the palm of his left hand, holding it firmly down with two or more fingers of the same hand, while with his right hand he placed his chisel or punch on the point that was to be broken off. A helper, sitting in front of him, then struck the chisel on the upper end with a mallet of very hard wood, flaking the flint off on the under side below each projecting point that was struck. The flint was then turned and chipped in the same manner until the required shape and dimensions were obtained; all the fractures were made on the hand, the yielding elasticity of the palm enabling the chip to come off without breaking the body of the flint. No metallic instruments were used in the work, the punch or chisel being made of a piece of bone or sometimes of the teeth of the sperm whale. It was about six or seven inches in length and one inch in diameter with one rounded and two plane sides; this gave one acute and two obtuse angles to work with. The operation was usually accompanied by singing, the strokes of the mallet being given in time with the music. Materials for the manufacture of implements and utensils and for building were gathered from the surface of the ground or quarried from the rock. The largest quarries so far examined are those at Flint Ridge, Ohio, in the suburbs of Washington, D. C., at Mill Creek in southern Illinois, in northeastern Oklahoma, in Wyoming, and in the State of Hidalgo, Mexico.

The Phillips Academy soccer team continued in its winning way last Saturday with a 3 to 0 victory over the strong Bridgewater Normal school eleven. The game which was played at the Old Campus, proved very interesting all the way through.

The strong defense of the Greenough brothers again featured the work of the Andover team. On the offense Kane and Jeffrey excelled for the Blue and White. Goals were scored by T. O. Greenough, Jones and A. Pugh.

Coach Jim Ryley's boys had little difficulty in getting through the defense of the Normal school eleven. Most of the playing was in the Normal school team's territory.

P. A. ATHLETICS

P. A. O.—Yale Fresh 9

In a slow and uninteresting game Saturday afternoon the Yale Freshman football team shut out the Phillips Academy eleven by the count of 9 to 0. Play was ragged all the way and many fumbles marred the contest which was viewed by a scant crowd due to the Yale-Brown game which was started before the Freshman game ended. Cruikshank made a field goal for the Freshmen in the first quarter to give them the lead and the only other score of the game came in the third period when Snead crossed the school team's goal line on an off-tackle smash.

The Academy team was outplayed by the Eli Freshmen throughout the game. Healy was best for the losers, while Cruikshank played well for Yale.

P. A. 6—St. John's 0

The Phillips Academy 2nd football eleven won a hard fought 6 to 0 game from the St. John's Prep, 2nd team on the Brothers field gridiron Saturday afternoon.

The P. A. Gray Shirts scored their winning points in the second period. Two pretty passes from Keesling to Kimball advanced the ball to St. John's five-yard line, and Keesling then crashed through left tackle for the touchdown.

The Danvers boys had all the best of the playing in the third period. A fumble of a punt by Kimball was recovered by a St. John's player on the blue's 10-yard line. Three plays advanced the ball to the two-yard stripe, but one of the St. John's linemen was detected holding and a 15-yard penalty was the result.

Mischler played a wonderful game for the Danvers eleven, and made practically all of his gains.
Keesling who scored the winning points, had to retire from the game just before the end of the first half. He suffered a head injury that came after a hard tackle, and was removed to the Isham infirmary.

The Three R's in the Discard

A great deal of water has flowed over the dam since the days when the three R's were considered the sole essentials of education. It is a good thing that the scope of education should have widened, and a number of worthy subjects have been added to the curriculum of our public schools. But the tendency to make the public school room the center for a thousand and one activities is unmistakable, occasionally resulting in an extreme and absurd practice. A good illustration of this is the recent appointment by the Boston School Committee of a number of advisers to girls in several of the high schools of the city.

The state is certainly usurping the place of the home. Not content with teaching cooking and sewing (even to boys in some instances) it now takes over that intimate and private responsibility of parents, and hires professional advisers to our girls. What next? It is difficult even to conceive of a more presumptuous step, or of an act which more nearly represents the drift toward government control of family affairs. Why the boys have been slighted in this respect is more than we can understand. Incidentally, it is a slap at the independent spirit of modern young womanhood to have a new brand of pedagogues placed over them in the capacity of advisers. The wonder is that, with so many minor activities going on in the classrooms there should be any time at all left for such old-fashioned and out-of-date courses as reading, writing and arithmetic. The book is being set aside for the needle, the pen, the saw. With the spread of the delicatessen store a new fad will have to be found to take the place of cooking, and a new group of experts will rise to the occasion and so prevent our children from finishing their schooling uneducated.

But this is not all. Another item is thus added to the school budget, and the tax rate continues to soar. What price centralization and bureaucracy? Perhaps the mother of the future, relieved of the need of teaching her daughter to cook and sew, and so on, will have to go out and work for a wage in order to meet her tax bill. At any rate she will have the satisfaction that comes from the knowledge that her children are receiving plenty of up-to-date and scientific education at the hands of the state's well paid experts.

As long as it is for the good of the children, what parent would not be ready to make any such sacrifice?

Editorial Cinder

New clubs are being born every day but seldom do they outgrow their infancy because they fail to fill a real need in the community. Occasionally, however, an organization is started which immediately "takes". People will say that it is just what they have wanted for a long while. The Andover Business and Professional Woman's club seems to be just such an organization if judged by its large and growing popularity. Those who have sponsored it, as well as all who have taken up the idea, should get considerable recreation and satisfaction by taking a share in such an interesting club.

Punchard Senior Dance

The senior class of Punchard High school held a dance in Punchard hall last Friday evening. About one hundred were present. Music was furnished by Barclay's orchestra and refreshments of cider and doughnuts were served. The matrons were: Mrs. Nathan C. Hamblin, Mrs. William Thompson, Mrs. Joseph Lynch and Mrs. Mervin Stevens.

Among those present were: The Misses Betty Todd, Sylvia Hurwitt, Edith Johnson, Florence Blodau, Mary Lamont, Helen J. J. Platt, Alice Jenkins, Helen Williams, Betty Baker, Louise Sullivan, Josephine Minor, Marjorie Lowe, Annetta Anderson, Emma and Daisy Stevens, Margaret Purcell, Margaret Laurie, Madeleine Kimball, Bessie Dimes, Helen Lynch, Virginia Abercrombie, Blanche Albers, Marion Burrill, Grace Parker, Marjorie Parker, Alice Daly, Christine Burns, Eleanor Thompson, Esther Lewis, Frances Cameron, Erna Carter, Madeline and Marion Rice, Anna Belle Leake, Katherine Croy, Helen Saunders, Doris Manning, William Emmons, Fred Otis, James Lowe, James Sparks, Abbot Cheever, William Simeone, Phil Allen, George Haggerty, Walter Diabrow, Ed Bonner, Joseph Doherty, Edward McCabe, William Green, Sumner Davis, John Hilton, Erving and Burton Whitcomb, Dick Douglas, Homer Wadman, Albert Dumont, Charles Remick, William Bliss, Jr., Cyrus Gates, Thomas Blunt, Charles Simpson, Fred Welch, William Dolan, Alfred Souter, George Adams, Philip Briedau, William McCoubrie, Aubrey Polgreen and Robert Abercrombie.

Serious Charge Made Against Andover Man

John Gallant, 57, married, and the father of a large family was arrested Sunday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Carl Stevens and appeared in police court Monday morning charged with an attempted assault on two girls who were walking in the woods not far from their own home. He was held in $1000 bonds for his reappearance on Thursday, October 20, at four o'clock.

Ethel Shaw and Eleanor Downes of South Main street, have identified Gallant, the police say, as the man whom they fought off when he set upon them as they walked through the woods on the Old Mill road east of Main street.

The girls beat off their assailant with rocks and by scratching him on the face and head. According to the police, while he was attempting to overpower Miss Downes, the other girl eluded him and flung stones at the man until he released his grip and fled. The girls returned to the Downes home, and accompanied by Mr. Downes rode up the Reading road where they met Gallant at Carter's corner emerging from Rocky Hill road, breathless and dishevelled. When arrested at his home on County road he had the scratches on his face and bald head that had been received in the recent encounter with him.

South Church Women's Union

An all-day meeting of all the women of the South Parish will be conducted by the Sewing Department on Thursday, October 27th.

At ten o'clock in the forenoon one hundred pieces of sewing for the Lawrence General Hospital will be started. Any woman who is willing to sew for this good cause is invited to attend and help for four hours.

At noon, box-luncheons will be investigated and coffee will be served by the Union.

In the afternoon at three o'clock the ladies who have been sewing and many others who will come for the program meeting, will gather in the large vestry where Dr. Chas. Burgess of Lawrence will give an interesting lecture on the use of the X-Ray, illustrated by stereopticon slides.

Special music is in charge of Miss Mabel Carter.

Devotional service is in charge of Mrs. Fred Cheney.

The afternoon will also include a social tea, and it is expected that many women will aspire to make this second general open meeting as successful as the first one was.

The Woman's Union netted at the Harvest Supper over $105.

Two-Piano Recital at Abbot Academy

On Thursday evening at 8:15, Kate and James Friskin will give a recital of music for two pianos at Abbot Academy. It is the series of three recitals of the Samuel Morse Downs Course. The other concerts will be a song recital by Ethel Smith, soprano, and a quartette concert by the new celebrated Hart-House string quartette.

Kate Friskin is known to Andover as a pianist of large attainments. James Friskin is recognized in New York as a master pianist. The combined art of these two virtuosos is bound to be compelling.

The program chosen by the Friskins is one of wide scope and interest. The older classical composers are represented by Mozart; the classic-romanticists, by Brahms and Arensky; the moderns by Bax and Ravel. Arnold Bax is an English composer (1883) of brilliant attainments. His music is structurally diatonic, but the figurative is of both line and of texture, and contrary to a tendency prevalent among many modern composers, he is not afraid to give it full play, whether in the fashioning of a poetic melody, or in a more prolonged flow of fantasy.

Antony Stepanovich Arensky (1861-1906) was a Russian composer whose music is somewhat akin to Tchaikovsky but with less inclination towards dramatic eloquence, and a far less efficient and less technical equipment.

As usual for these concerts, an admission of one dollar will be taken at the door.

Natural History Society Meets

A very delightful evening was spent by members of the Andover Natural History society as they gathered about the table in the Goldsmith library at the Punchard building and listened to Mrs. Daniel C. Hunt of Haverhill tell about "Wild flowers in their native haunts and in the wild garden."

Mrs. Hunt has a very practical knowledge of wild flowers gained from years of study and enthusiasm in the field work ranging through the states. From her numerous trips she has brought home many wild flowers which she has had been able to naturalize, her success being due in a large measure to her study of soils. Mrs. Hunt's talk was illustrated with a well chosen collection of specimens, especially of ferns. In addition to the specimens, Mrs. Hunt brought with her a collection of books which she had found helpful in her study and which proved very interesting to the members of the society.

Dr. Richard Cabot Addresses Phillips Club

Dr. Richard Cabot in speaking on "The Teaching of Ethics" before members of the Harvard club and their guests at a meeting held at the Peabody house Monday evening, said that he didn't hope, himself, to make people better, but rather to irritate or stimulate them into making themselves better.

His method of teaching ethics is by the "case method" and by the study of biography. In the case method he stimulates moral reasoning by the study and discussion of incidents in the lives of individuals exemplifying such moral attitudes as honesty, courage or their reverse. Dr. Cabot is constantly collecting stories of such "cases" and hopes at some time to publish a collection of such as have been found most fruitful for discussion.

On a larger scale, the whole life of a man is studied and by the contagion of great personalities, the student is stimulated. Dr. Cabot has found the biographies of Dickens, Roosevelt and Pasteur especially interesting. At the close of the talk and the discussion which followed, President Rockwell proposed a rising vote of thanks to Dr. Cabot.

South Church Thank-Offering Service

On Sunday morning October 23rd the customary hour of worship at the South Church will be filled by a special thank-offering service which has been prepared by Rev. Charles S. Mills D. D., formerly of Andover. This service will be used by hundreds of Congregational churches throughout the land in calling people to show their appreciation of all blessings by making substantial thank-offerings for the Christian missions of the church.

Rev. Lloyd G. Knight of Idaho will preach the sermon. He comes to the eastern churches highly recommended and has been very busy speaking in many programs in the vicinity of Boston.

Everybody is invited.

Young People's Fellowship

After the service on last Sunday night held by the young people, Miss Alice Jenkins gave a very delightful talk on "My Trip Around the World." She had asked the young people to suggest questions and she used these questions as headings in her talk. Her impressions of the sea voyage and the mis-named Pacific ocean (which did not trouble her); her account of the customs, ceremonies and courtesies which she found in Japan; the social conditions in China where there was so much trouble, and in Hong Kong where there was peace and order; the visit to India, where the caste system is depressing, and to the Holy land and Egypt, which proved to her that the people of Christ's time were cave dwellers; all these subjects interested her hearers, and roused further questions.

Next Sunday night at 6:30 o'clock, the subject will be the "Life of Christ" illustrated by special stereopticon pictures, the description being given by Edwin Grimes of Boston University.

Weddings

NICOLL - LADD

A pretty fall wedding was that of Miss Marion Dorothea Ladd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Ladd of 46 Whittier street and Robert Geoffrey Black Nicoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Nicoll of 51 Whittier street which took place at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, minister of the South church in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, took place beneath an arch in the living-room. As the bridal party entered along the ribboned aisle, rose petals were strewn in their path by Miss Isabel MacKenzie, a niece of the bridegroom. The bride was given in marriage by her father and the double ring service was used.

The bride wore white satin with a veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses.

The maid of honor Miss Bertha J. Ladd, a sister of the bride wore pale pink chiffon velvet and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. Miss Deborah Parker of Greenville, N. H., a cousin of the bride, wore blue georgette, trimmed with chiffon velvet and carried butterfly roses.

The groom was attended by his brother John Nicoll and the ushers were Frederick H. Ladd, Jr., brother of the bride and William MacKenzie, nephew of the groom.

The wedding march was played by Miss Beatrice Lee of Concord, a cousin of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at which Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll were assisted in receiving by their parents and the maid of honor. Guests were present from Boston, Brookline, Melrose Highlands, Arlington, North Andover, Concord, Greenville, N. H., and Wallingford, Connecticut. A collation was served by Caterer Page of Lowell.

The decorations in the living-room where the ceremony was performed were green and white and in the dining-room bright autumn colors.

The bride's traveling costume was of tan georgette with a Kashmir coat and hat to match.

After a wedding trip spent at Vineyard Haven, Martha's Vineyard, Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll will take up their residence at 106 St. Stephen street, Boston, where they will be at home to their friends after November 20.

By a happy coincidence October 19 was the twenty-eighth anniversary of the marriage of the bride's parents. Both bride and groom were graduates of the Pundard High school in the Class of 1921. The bride was graduated in 1924 from the Mary Hemingway School of Household Arts at Framingham and up to the time of her resignation on October 7, was a dietitian at the Phillips Clark University in Worcester, and for the past three years has been employed by the Mutual Fire Insurance Bureau of Salem.

He has just accepted a position with the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance company at a substantial increase in salary.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll received a wide variety of wedding presents, including several gifts of money.

Bridge Lessons

Do you play bridge? If so you will enjoy the new series of auction bridge lessons by Wynne Ferguson which will appear exclusively in The Townsman beginning October 28 on Page 8. There will be thirty-six articles or lessons appearing weekly and they will be written so that the beginners at bridge will be able to understand them. At the end of each article there will be a problem which Mr. Ferguson will answer the following week.

Bridge has become the leading entertainment and amusement in the homes of Americans and unlike many other games there is always something more to learn about the bidding and play. For this reason the Townsman has secured the services of Mr.

WYNNE FERGUSON

Ferguson who is an acknowledged authority on bridge. Mr. Ferguson has appeared in the Radio Auction Bridge games which have been broadcast through the leading American and Canadian stations. He also will participate in one of the radio bridge games this winter.

The associates of Mr. Ferguson are widely known bridge players and experts. His intimate friends have always exerted every effort to improve the game. Therefore Mr. Ferguson is in a position to know everything that is new and no change of importance can occur without his knowledge.

Readers of the Townsman will receive the benefit of Mr. Ferguson's expert opinion. Watch for the first article which will appear on October 28 and every week thereafter for thirty-six weeks.

"Inside" Information

When cooking "wenies" out of doors, try a wire corn popper.

Use the vinegar from a bottle of sweet mixed pickles for making salad dressing. You can brine some of the late vegetables and green tomatoes for making pickle later on. U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how.

A bit of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl — just enough to give a mere suggestion of flavor — makes an acceptable improvement in flavor for many people.

When choosing linoleum for the kitchen floor, bear in mind the three kinds — plain, printed and inlaid. Plain linoleum is likely to show foot-prints and other marks easily. Printed linoleum has to be varnished often to preserve the design. Inlaid linoleum has a design which goes clear through to the backing. It is consequently more expensive, but the pattern does not wear off.

Meat loaf is one of the most appetizing meat dishes you can serve. Any lean meat may be used if gristle and skin are trimmed off. From a fourth to a fifth as much pork as beef is a good proportion. If pork is not added, a small amount of suet should be put through the chopper with the meat.

Serve fresh tomatoes as often as possible at this season — sliced or stuffed for salads, broiled, fried, baked, or for flavoring other dishes. Tomato juice "cocktail" is simply tomato juice seasoned and chilled, taken as an appetizer before any meal.

High Finance

A man once complained to a broker that he couldn't get back a loan of $500 from a debtor. Being advised to sue, the unlucky creditor had to confess that he had no note or other written acknowledgment of the debt. "Write to him," said the financier, "and tell him that you must have the $1,000 at once."

"But it was only $500," objected the other man. "Exactly. He will write back and then you will have your acknowledgement." — De Laval Monthly.

Goodwin Speaks a Word in Behalf of the Pedestrians

The following pertinent letter was received this week from Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, by Chief of Police, Frank M. Smith.

DEAR CHIEF: In the first fifteen days of October, there have been 43 persons killed in Massachusetts of whom 28 were pedestrians. Of these 17 were little children and 8 were pedestrians of 50 years or older. There were 38 killed in the cities and thickly settled towns while only 5 were killed in the smaller towns. While this number is 4 less than during the first 15 days of October last year, it is, nevertheless, a terrible record because it is so unnecessary.

There is one law on the statute books which is probably the most important of all motor vehicle laws, and yet it is never enforced; and I have not been able to find where a single person has been prosecuted for its violation. This law says that a motorist, upon approaching a pedestrian in the traveled part of the highway shall slow down and sound a timely signal.

If this law were obeyed or enforced, there would be practically no pedestrians killed on our streets. I have observed thousands of motorists sound the horn and keep on at the same speed, making it necessary for the pedestrian to run or jump out of the way. Those who are nimble enough get out of the way, but the children and elderly people, in many instances, are unable to do so.

Heading and talk will do little good. What we need is law enforcement. I am appealing to you for an enforcement drive against the motorists in order to compel them to obey the "slow down" law while approaching pedestrians.

Thanking you for your splendid cooperation, I remain,

Very truly yours,
FRANK A. GOODWIN,
Registrar

The past week pledges to the amount of $150 more have been added to those already given for the roof and the committee has decided to have a tile roof. These pledges have come without solicitation and are all the more gratifying because of that fact, and if this continues it will mean a much smaller debt to finance.

The Ladies Aid Society will hold a rummage sale in the Baptist church vestry on Saturday, October 28, at 9:30 o'clock. Those having articles to offer for the sale and wishing to have them collected will please notify either Mrs. George Winslow, Tel. 222, Mrs. Baxter, Tel. 281-J, or Mrs. Robert Schie, Tel. 1074-R. The proceeds are for the vestry fund.

TWO KANSU QUAKES
MAKE NEW RECORD

China Hard Hit Twice in Seven Years.

Washington.—The earthquake of May 22 in the Kansu province of China happening so soon after that of 1920 in the same region sets a new record. Never before in the knowledge of Commander N. H. Heck, in charge of the United States coast and geodetic survey's earthquake investigations, have two such severe shocks in the same region occurred so close together. It was Commander Heck and his associates, using data gathered from seismograph observatories by Science Service, who located the position of the quake long before reports from the devastated areas reached civilization.

Half Million Deaths in 1920. In the quake of 1920, an estimated total of half a million people were killed, but according to reports from the region the casualties of the May earthquake numbered about 100,000. The 1920 quake was a little nearer to Peking, but other reasons are probably responsible for the lower loss of life in this latest one.

The Kansu province has been described as the "Wild West of China." Like our own wild west in the early days, it is a very unsettled region, and there have been frequent uprisings among the people of the region, who are largely Mohammedans. The last great uprising was in 1895, and since then the people have abandoned the cities in great numbers. Kulung, which is one of the cities reported as being destroyed, was described a few years ago by travelers, according to the National Geographic society, as being nearly deserted and in ruins. Had the cities been as heavily populated as in past years, the loss of life would have been far greater, as the earthquake was one of the most severe on record.

Most Severe in Mountains. It was across the Nanshan mountains, which lie near Tibet, that the May earthquake seems to have been most severe. A little distance to the north of the devastated region runs the famous Great Wall, which ends about 200 miles to the west of it. Practically through the region there ran in the past one of the great high roads into China. In recent times a railroad along the same route has been proposed. The great earthquakes do not necessarily mean that such a project is unsafe, however.

Though the country contains geological evidence of earthquakes in the past, until 1920 none had occurred within historic times. Perhaps the shakes in 1920 and 1927 have relieved the strain of the region, and no more will occur for centuries.

Primitive Old Tavern

The old George tavern is about the only hotel left in London where a guest is shown to his bedroom by the light of a candle.

The ancient tavern contains many relics of Charles Dickens, and pictures and photographs of London as it appeared in his day. It is situated in a courtyard which is reached by turning up a narrow lane out of Borough High street, near London bridge.

All bedrooms are furnished with huge old-fashioned four-poster beds. It is the only remaining hostelry in England's capital with an open wooden balcony running along outside the bedroom windows.

Shelves behind its tiny bar are laden with old pewter quart pots, relics of the old coaching days when thrusters were big and capacious unlimited. Hung upon the walls are cumbersome pistols, which were carried by the old night watchmen.

Ray Pierce's Fog

The time is coming when every ship will carry an "invisible" searchlight to pierce fogs, and every automobile will carry a dark lamp for the same purpose. This is the prediction made by J. L. Baird, inventor of television. He has invented a dark ray which, he claims, will pierce thick fogs or smoke. The invention is called "noctovision" and has been demonstrated at his laboratory in London. Admiral Mark Kerr of the British navy declared that in his opinion the invention is the biggest thing discovered for sea and air travel in many years. By the use of chemicals the scientist created an artificial fog in the laboratory so thick that his assistants were choked in it. Admiral Kerr saw Baird transmit a doll's features through this fog.

False Front

They used to tell a story of Newton Baker. During the war he had to make a hurried trip to Cleveland and took an ordinary berth in the Pullman car. After the train left Washington he went into the smoking room and some one said to him:

"I should think that you, being secretary of war, would be afraid to travel in so public a style. Aren't you afraid some one might try to do harm to you?"

Mr. Baker looked up and said: "Why, no one in the world would look at a little fellow like me and think he was secretary of war!"—Los Angeles Times.

Refused to "Dee" and Make Way for Marg't

A woman in Hordbury, Yorkshire, was dying, relates S. Baring Gould in "Further Reminiscences." She said to her husband:

"Ah, lad! I wonder whatever the pair balms will do after I be gone."

"Get along wi' thy dying, lass," replied he, soothingly, "I'll mind t' bairns."

Another wife was thought to be at her last gasp. She summoned her husband to her bedside and then addressed him solemnly:

"Eh, lad! I be that sorry for thee. Thou'll be so lone w'out me. None to cook thy dinner, none to mend thy socks, none to set sew on thy buttons. It dux weils on my sperits."

"Don't concern thyself about that," replied he. "I've already spoken to Marg'et Rhodes to take thy place, and she's quite agreeable."

"Thou hast!" exclaimed the expiring wife, starting up in bed and bringing the point of her hand with a resounding smack on the man's bald head. "Thou'lt tell thee what, Joe, I won't dee."

"Very well," answered the man, pulling out his kerchief and wiping his pate. "If thou'lt made up thy mind not to dee, I'll speak to Marg'et, and put her off."

"I left horth two years after this," adds Mr. Baring Gould, "and Marg'et was still waiting."

Chilled Postage Stamps

Cool Florida Tongues

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Chilled postage stamps gave St. Petersburg tongues a surprise when the stamps were licked before being affixed to letters and postcards. For St. Petersburg's stamps are now served right out of cold storage.

Work has been completed on a cold-storage room in the new parcel post station, which is an adjunct to the city's famous outdoor postoffice. The temperature will be maintained between 36 and 42 degrees, making one of the coolest spots in Florida.

The stamps are being kept in the room to prevent the mullage from becoming hot and "sticky."

Wireless Fog Warnings

Fog is one of the greatest dangers to shipping, but it is hoped that a new wireless invention may in future automatically warn approaching vessels of their nearness before it is too late to avoid a collision.

This invention is in the form of an electric beam that will broadcast a warning signal over a ten-mile radius to other ships in its path. It is independent of the ordinary wireless and need only be turned on in foggy weather.

By locating the signals, other craft will be able to take the necessary steps through the use of the radio compass that shows the direction from which the signals are coming.

BABSON DISCUSSES EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES IN DIFFERENT SECTIONS OF UNITED STATES

General Slackening of Employment Especially in the Building Trades—However There Is Demand for Unskilled Labor in Farming Sections and for Skilled Workers in Many Cities

Babson Park, Mass., October 21, 1927: Roger W. Babson in his weekly interview this week, discusses employment conditions. Mr. Babson has gone to considerable trouble to check up on this situation owing to so many conflicting statements. His statement is based upon reports received directly from Chambers of Commerce.

Building Trades Slackening

"As will be seen from the statistics which I will later submit, there has been a general slackening of employment during the past few months. This does not mean that there is much unemployment as yet, but rather that the pressure for workers has been removed. For the first time for several years, employers are able to pick and choose and in many instances, to dictate terms. With the exception of Detroit and a few other cities, there is no general distress. Wage workers, however, who are thinking of moving from one city to another, or giving up a job before getting another, should look the matter up very carefully before making any move."

"Outside of the cities to which I refer above, the principal slackening of employment is in connection with the building trades. Although road building and other public construction is progressing at a rapid rate, which holds up the building statistics, there has been considerable decline in general building; especially hotels, apartment houses and large homes. On the other hand, there is a good seasonable demand for unskilled labor in the farming sections, especially in the northwest. The recent cyclone in St. Louis has quickened the demand for labor in that city. As very few factories were seriously harmed, the cyclone has caused no unemployment, while the clearing up of the debris and rebuilding have developed a sharp demand for labor."

Cities Favoring Skilled Workers

"Out of fifty-seven representative cities throughout the United States, and in which I have been able to make a personal investigation during the past few weeks, only seven suggest the employment situation as good, against thirty-three with fair employment possibilities and seventeen cities in which employment is poor at this time. The country is not without some cities which claim conditions favorable both to unskilled and skilled workers at this time. Such representative cities, for instance, as Chester (Pennsylvania), Jackson (Mississippi), and Charleston (West Virginia) consider that the chances of employment for new people coming to their cities at this time are excellent. Few Chambers of Commerce appear to be as optimistic upon the subject, just now, as do those of these three cities."

"On the other hand, my investigation shows more cities favorable to skilled workers than to unskilled workers at the present time. In the east, I find that such cities as New Haven (Connecticut), Wilmington (Delaware), and Trenton (New Jersey), are favorable to skilled workers, whereas such places as Lancaster and Pittsburgh (Pennsylvania) lean toward unskilled workers. In the south, I find Beaumont (Texas) showing well in favor of skilled workers, while Savannah (Georgia), Knoxville (Tennessee), and Winston-Salem (North Carolina) are inclining toward unskilled workers at this time. As one travels more westward, it is apparent that places such as Fort Wayne (Indiana), Lansing (Michigan) and Racine (Wisconsin) are favorable to skilled workers."

Southern Employment Holds Up Well

"Regardless of whether a man is a skilled or unskilled worker, there are a number of cities at this time in which it would be extremely difficult for him to obtain work. Such cities, for instance, as Muskogee (Oklahoma) and Memphis (Tennessee) are of the opinion that they are well supplied with workers of any sort. In connection with these cities however, we must bear in mind that the recent flood throughout the Mississippi Valley has unexpectedly, but greatly affected local economic conditions. Birmingham (Alabama), too, appears to have more unemployed than at any recent period, but it is argued that too much outside labor is drawn to that city. Shreveport (Louisiana) also shows poor chances at the moment for new people coming to the city to work, for there is already some unemployment in Shreveport as it is."

"I have been speaking here more of cities in the south, but my investigation of employment conditions in the north has not resulted in so unfavorable a picture as the few places mentioned above would appear to suggest. As a matter of fact, southern employment is holding up well when all circumstances are considered. Reports, on the whole, are better than for many northern and western districts. This is made more apparent when one condenses the results of this current investigation of employment conditions. Such a summary, reproduced below, shows that in my study of seventeen representative middle west cities employment is poor in seven, fair in eight and good in only two; while my study of twenty-one representative southern cities indicates employment poor in only six, fair in eleven and good in four."

Conclusion

"So far as the present situation is concerned, there is nothing for anyone to worry about unless possibly the installment interests. In most places only the inefficient have been thrown out of employment and this tends to increase the efficiency of those who remain. Nothing so deteriorates a group of workers as to have a shortage of labor, and nothing so inspires a group as to have a surplus of labor. Without doubt, our present work could be easily done in the same number of hours by ten percent less people. This increased efficiency is already noticeable in certain of the building trade groups and in certain of the industrial groups, such as the textile industry and the boot and shoe industry."

"The employment situation is very definitely linked up with general business. As long as general business holds normal, employment should hold normal, and as long as employment holds normal, general business should hold normal. One is the lock and the other is the key; one is the hatchet and the other is the handle; they both must go together. At present general business, as registered by the Babson chart, is close to normal and this is a fair statement as to the exact status of the employment situation."

THEATRES

REPERTORY THEATRE
With "Machine Wreckers", The Repertory Theatre begins on Monday evening the third week of its season by presenting for the first time on the professional stage in America one of the masterpieces of modern drama. It is the work of Ernst Toller, the famous German dramatist whose plays have attracted wide-spread attention on both sides of the Atlantic, and its reception amounted almost to a furore when it was first acted in Europe. The English version has been made by Ashley Dukes, and it has been rearranged for the American stage, and especially for its production at The Repertory Theatre, by Frances Jewett.

"Machine Wreckers" is a powerful drama dealing with the turmoil, the romance, the sardonic humor and the emotion of the working classes in England. In spirit and dramatic force it is something akin to Galsworthy's "Justice" and "Strife", which have heretofore been acted with great success in Boston under Henry Jewett's direction. Its scenes are placed in England about one hundred years ago, in the days when "the first gentleman of Europe" was Prince Regent, and its plot weaves out an intensely powerful story that is filled with action, with the clash of temperament especially bringing to light the hard conditions under which the working classes of England labored during that period.

The entire production at The Repertory Theatre will be under the direction of Henry Jewett. There will be newly designed stage settings from the skillful hand of Jonel Jorgulesco, and the cast will include Forbes Dawson as Jimmy Cobbett, Marion Good as Teddy Wibley, Arthur Sircom as John Wibley, Dennis Cleugh as Ned Lud, Thayer Roberts as Henry Cobbett, Olga Birkbeck as Mrs. Cobbett, Arthur Bowyer as the Old Reaper, May Ward as Mary Wibley, William Faverham, Jr., as Arthur, William Mason as Ure, Arthur Brander as a Deaf Man, Ada Sinclair as Margaret Lud, and Henry Jewett as The Engineer.

"Wild Weed" Found on Best Tables

Both as a salsa pimenta for the table, and as a medicinal herb, mustard has occupied a place long antedating the beginnings of written history. Hippocrates made use of it in his medicine, and the cooks of ancient Rome had it in their kitchens. The name now applied to both plant and condiment comes to us from the French word mustarde, modified for modern use into mustard; but this word had its origin in the mixing of the crushed mustard seeds with must, or unfermented wine, the Latin name for which was mustum. Eventually, the word for the mixture came to be applied to the seed and then to the plant. These derivations, however, had little to do with the establishment of the mustard industry of the century ago, of an important industry in the warm little valley of middle California.

This valley comprising about twelve thousand acres all told, of which not more than five thousand acres have ever been planted to mustard, produces 90 percent of all the mustard consumed in the United States or manufactured and exported from this country. Something like ten million pounds of mustard seed are marketed every year in the United States, of which the Lombard farmers produce better than 90 percent, or around nine million pounds.

Mustard seed is of two varieties, the black or red (Austrian) and the yellow (English or German). One is of about the same value as the other, and the plants growing in the field are virtually indistinguishable except the eye of a mustard expert. The seed is sown broadcast, as much as sixty acres being seeded in a day. Thereafter, there is nothing to be done to the mustard crop — unless it is flooded with irrigating water until it is cut with a reaper, much as hay or grain is cut. Cutting takes place just as the seed pods, which are similar to those of the radish, begin to dry, and before they open, so that the seed will not be lost. The cut mustard brush is piled on sheets of canvas about sixty feet square, and so carried to the threshing machine, the same threshers that are used in the threshing of wheat or barley.

To those who are accustomed to consider mustard as merely a "wild weed" growing on waste lands or as a yellow-brown paste used with cold meats at table, the varied uses of mustard seed and its value as an agricultural industry will be surprising. It is estimated that the total sales value of the products of mustard seed throughout the world is nearly three million dollars a year, considerably more than half of which sum is paid for the oils developed from mustard seed for medicinal and mechanical purposes. It is interesting also to note that in the realm of medicine mustard is the only emetic which is also a stimulant to the heart and to the respiratory organs. Many a person who has taken poison, either by accident or with intent, owes his life to this peculiar quality of mustard. — John Sloan in "The Dearborn Independent."

The United States produced two billion dozen eggs last year. This is at the rate of about 760 eggs each second.

U. S. IMPROVES ON WEAPONS FOR WAR

Important Advances Made Over Arms of 1917.

Washington.—New weapons far superior to those used by the American army during the World War have been developed by the Ordnance branch of the War Department. Predominant characteristics of the new weapons over the old are increased ranges, heavier projectiles and greater mobility.

While the United States has not progressed so far as European armies, especially England, in the mechanization of its fighting equipment, inquiry reveals unusually important advances in the development of new artillery weapons. Examination of the new weapons discloses that in case of another emergency, the American army will at least have weapons perfected which can be rushed into production with full confidence that they will function efficiently on the battle field.

Two outstanding examples in the artillery weapons are the 75-millimeter gun and the 75-millimeter pack howitzer. Other improved weapons include a new 155-millimeter or 6-inch field gun and the 75-millimeter pack split trail, an improved 37-millimeter infantry weapon, a new trench mortar, two new 3-inch anti-aircraft guns and a 14-inch howitzer.

Artillerymen are confident that the new 75-millimeter gun developed in this country since the war is destined to make the smaller caliber field gun a more efficient weapon. The American 75, while weighing slightly more than the famous French 75-millimeter field gun, used so widely during the war, has a much greater range and a wider field of fire. Where the old weapon had a maximum range of 9,200 yards, the new American rifle fires a 15-pound projectile a distance of 15,000. Its elevation, thanks to the use of a split trail, is 45 degrees, while the old weapon had an elevation of only 19 degrees.

The new American 75 will be horse-drawn and tests have shown it can be taken anywhere the old 75 could go. This gun has been adopted for army use. Companion pieces for this weapon are the new 75-millimeter pack howitzer and the recently developed 105-millimeter rifle.

The advantages of the new howitzer are that it boasts a range as great as the French 75 and is so light in weight that it can be easily transported through mountainous or hilly country.

Find Indians Raised 32 Leading Vegetables

Washington.—According to the Department of Agriculture, the American Indian was a successful vegetable farmer.

"In the American vegetable garden," the department points out, "eight principal food products had their origin in the Indian crops existing before the advent of the white man. These include beans, corn, peppers, pumpkins, squash, tomato, potato and sweet potato."

Vegetables of Old World origin are far more numerous. The department lists 24 of importance:

Cucumbers, eggplant, muskmelon, watermelon, okra, asparagus, beets, brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, kale and collard, kohlrabi, leek, lettuce, onion, parsley, parsnip, peas, radish, salsify, spinach and turnip.

"But," it is asserted, "the value of the crop of the eight native vegetables is considerably greater than the 24 of foreign origin."

Not to Be Consolated
Little Katherine was crying, not for anything in particular, but for everything in general. Her mother, trying to divert her attention, said:

"Oh, look at that pretty horse tied out there."

But Katherine took it as one more grievance in life, saying: "I want that horse to be a mule."

INDIANS OF BOLIVIA RELATED TO INCAS

Aymaras Conquered by a Once Powerful Race.

Washington.—The Indian revolt in Bolivia, South America, is being carried on by a people closely related to the ancient Incas of the Andean highlands, whose civilization, before the coming of the Spanish conquerors, was one of the most highly developed in the New World. A bulletin from the National Geographic society tells of these highlanders and their past glories.

The Indians of Bolivia are Aymaras," says the bulletin, "while the direct descendants of the Incas, in Peru, are known as Quechuas. The old Incas, at the height of their power, conquered the Aymaras of their day, but the Aymaras land around Lake Titicaca was the holy land of the Incas, because they looked upon it as the origin of both their civilization and their blood. Because of this relationship the Aymaras received special privileges over the vassals of the Incas. The full-blooded Bolivian Indians of today therefore may be looked upon as representatives of the race from which the great Incan civilization sprang.

Have Little to Do With Whites.
"The Bolivian Aymaras and the Peruvian Quechuas are much alike in appearance and characteristics. Those of the highlands of both countries have developed huge chests in the rarefied air. Their active life of climbing has given them extra strong leg muscles. Both have dark reddish complexions, broad faces and black eyes. They are a sullen people, hardly little to do with the whites and apparently resenting their intrusion.

"More than 50 per cent of the inhabitants of Bolivia are full-blooded Aymaras, while nearly 30 per cent are of mixed blood, the so-called 'Cholas.' The Cholas and the whites, 1.5 per cent, for the most part in La Paz, the capital of Bolivia, and the other sizeable towns. The village populations are almost wholly Indian, and large numbers of Indians also live on the agricultural estates and the grazing lands, working usually for white owners.

Wear Few Clothes.
"Although it is bitterly cold on the wind-swept, bleak upland plains of Bolivia, the natives wear little clothes, most of them going bare-legged. They seem intent, however, on keeping their heads warm, and beneath their hats men wear woolen skull caps. They live chiefly on frozen potatoes and dried goat meat.

"The great mass of the Indian population of Bolivia is illiterate. Many of the Indians cannot speak Spanish, and some who understand the language pretend ignorance to avoid contacts with the whites.

"Yet the ancestors of these people produced great cities which give evidence of a high degree of culture. One of the most remarkable of the Incas cities was Machu Picchu, a city of refuge where Inca civilization was kept alive during many centuries. The ruins of this city, hidden in almost inaccessible mountain fastnesses, were discovered by a National Geographic society expedition in 1912.

"The most famous pre-Incan ruins are those of Tiwanaco in Bolivia, not far from Lake Titicaca. These are believed to be the remains of buildings constructed by the ancestors of the Aymaras. The walls, still standing, are composed of huge stones set without mortar. The stones were dressed so well by their ancient makers that they are in perfect contact and have remained as placed hundreds of years ago."

Retribution
Curses always recoil on the head of him who imprudently them. If you put a chain around the neck of a slave, the other end fastens itself around your own.—Emerson.

FOUND DEAD AT DESK

James Baillie Expires in His Office of Heart Disease—President of American Lanolin Refinery

James Baillie, 50, of 366 North Main street, was found dead seated at his desk in the offices of the American Lanolin Wool Grease Refinery at 13 Railroad street, early Wednesday morning. Death was due to heart failure.

The body was discovered by his brother who was requested by the family of the man to search for him after he failed to return home at one o'clock. The brother promptly drove to the refinery office and found Mr. Baillie seated in his swivel chair.

Mr. Baillie, who is vice president and manager of the refinery, left home about eight o'clock Tuesday night for the purpose of performing several odd jobs and then returning home. Sensing that he might have succumbed to the illness which had troubled him for some time, the family notified the brother who promptly notified police upon finding the body.

Fire department ambulance attendants worked over the body with a pulmotor for more than an hour but were unable to kindle the spark of life.

Mr. Baillie was well and favorably known in Lawrence business circles. He was a member of Grecian Lodge A. F. and A. M., the Caledonian club; the United Congregational church and the Square and Compass Glee club all of Lawrence.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret Dobbie Baillie; two daughters, Mrs. Walter Gordon of Brighton and Hannah Baillie; three sons, Andrew, John and William; two brothers, Thomas and Andrew of Lawrence; two sisters, Mrs. Frederick Best of London and Mrs. Joseph Remick of Methuen.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the late home, Rev. Arba John Marsh, pastor of the United Congregational church of Lawrence officiated and interment was in the family lot in Walnut Grove cemetery.

Christian Science Lecture

A lecture on Christian Science was given Monday night in the Crystal Ballroom which was well attended. John W. Dooley, C.S.B. of London, England, was the speaker. Mr. Dooley is a member of the board of lecturers of the mother church, the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. The lecture was under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Lawrence.

Ancient Blue Print

An architect's drawing, believed to be by far the oldest in the world, discovered in Mesopotamia, is described by Dr. J. Stur, a Viennese engineer. This 4,000-year-old equivalent of a blue print was in a fragmentary condition, but three of the pieces fit accurately together, showing part of the ground plan of what must have been a very large house. The walls and doorways for several rooms are indicated by accurately and cleanly drawn lines, and cuneiform notes give the dimensions. The largest room was 40 by 46 feet, and the scale of the drawing is 1 to 360.

Changed Distress Signal

On January 7, 1904, the Marconi International Communication company issued an order to all stations to add the letter D to the general inquiry call C Q, then used by British ships to form a signal of distress, for use by all ships. The international radio telegraph convention of Berlin went into force in July, 1908, at which time the signal S O S was universally adopted, although for some period subsequent to that date operators used both C Q D and S O S in order that there would be assurance that their distress signal would be understood.

Unverified Sayings

Did Napoleon Bonaparte, in referring to his marriage with an Austrian princess and to his trusting friendship for her country, say: "There I stepped onto an abyss and with flowers?" These words appear in authentic records of the exiled emperor's life along with many other graceful phrases that soften unpleasant truths in orthodox French fashion. French authorities, too, disagree over that famous cry: "After me the deluge." One early memoir credits it to Madame de Pompadour. Larousse's "Fleurs Historiques" attributes it to Louis XV.

How Indians Fashioned Implements of Stone

Indians obtained their material for stone implements freshly from the earth when possible. A piece of stone was first split into suitable fragments by holding it edgewise on a hard base and hitting it sharply with a one-sided twist of another stone, says Pathfinder Magazine. The fragments were trimmed to a leaf-shape by striking them smartly with a hammer of bone, bone or tough granular stone mounted on a light handle. Stones thus prepared were then carried to camp to be finished at leisure. They were buried in damp soil, not to hide them, as often supposed, but to keep them even-tempered. This practice accounts for the caches of crude arrowheads often found. The finishing was done with a chisel-like pressure implement of bone or buckhorn. Frequently the crude arrowhead was folded in a buckskin pad to keep it from breaking and then placed on a stone or notched block of wood with the margin projecting over the edge. By applying strong, abrupt pressure at the proper points with the pressure tool, a skilled artisan detached flakes with considerable ease. In this manner margins were trimmed, stems sharpened and notches made and points sharpened. Flint and fire played no part in the process.

Thimble Club Bowls

The Thimble Club bowlers had a try-out Tuesday afternoon in preparation for the opening of the season next week. Mrs. D. L. Coutts led the field with a single of 89 and a triple of 245. Mrs. G. Todd was a close second hitting 88 and 240.

Lycurgus Pictured as 'Foe of "Hard Liquor"

King Lycurgus, reputed founder of the Spartan constitution, is given the honor by tradition of being one of the world's first prohibitionists, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. In fact, several ancient historians say he was such a good king that his subjects could not tolerate him.

Though Plutarch even in his time wrote that there was the greatest variance in the recorded accomplishments of Lycurgus, on the following story several earlier writers seem to agree. After returning from extensive travels, including Egypt, Spain, Crete, India and Libya, Lycurgus instituted several drastic reforms in Thracia, among these being the abolishment of the worship of Bacchus.

Wine and drunkenness were almost the essentials of religion then, consequently many of the people thought there must be a mistake on somebody's part in attempting to enforce such sudden sobriety, and insurrection resulted. Lycurgus saw that emergency measures were necessary and visiting the high priestess he commanded her to express his reform views in oracular form.

Whether she was one who was not averse to an occasional cup herself! will never be known, but tradition says that those in the temple soon heard the oracle's mystic voice declare: "No more wine shall be drunken in Thracia," adding after a small but highly significant pause, "so long as Lycurgus is on the throne." The Thracians then submitted, but shortly thereafter Lycurgus died. The date of his reign is uncertain, but most historians place it in the Ninth century B. C.

Eel on Angler's Hook

Makes for Profanity
The eel is an interesting fish. In fresh water I have seldom seen him moving about in daylight, unless the water was very dark colored, but in salt water I have seen numbers of them swimming fearlessly and hunting small fish in packs.

The eel has great strength and seems to twist himself about to apply it. He will twist himself about a stick or a bunch of grass, when hooked, and secure a leverage that enables him to bend or break the hook and get away.

When lifted from the water on a hook at the end of a line, he often curls his tail about his body and climbs, tail end first, by the line, which he can tangle almost hopelessly before he can be removed from it. After removing an eel from a hook I untangled the line and counted eight half hitches and two single overhand knots which the fish had tied more quickly than I could have done it myself.—Armstrong Perry in the Forum Magazine.

The Awakening
No one saw how it began. The first the people lounging on the beach saw was his body borne ruthlessly along on the crest of a wave, where it was twisted for a moment in giddy gyrations before being hurled violently upon the beach.

A crowd was soon assisting to bring him beyond reach of the cruel waves. Skilled hands applied artificial respiration. It was not too late, for they could see the man was coming to. His blue lips parted and he gasped painfully, while his eyes slowly opened.

"All P. right, Alice," he said haltingly. "I leave me alone and I'll get up!"

DEACONS LEAD LEAGUE

Square and Compass Bowlers Open Season Deacons Take Four From Tylers and Head Procession

The Andover Square and Compass club bowling league got underway Tuesday night on the Shawshien Alleys for its third season, bigger and better than ever. Competition promises to be keen for places on the various teams and it will be the survival of the fittest.

In the opening matches, while there were several good strings, the old reliables showed lack of practice but they say "Watch us from now on." The teams have an official designation and the Tylers whose motto is "They shall not pass" were maltreated by the Deacons. Harold Peters began in mid-season form and his 295 with 105 for high single was a deciding factor in his team's 4-point win. Capt. Neilson hit 275. The Tylers put up a brave fight and while the dependables slipped Town Clerk Higgins surprised the talent with his record performance 270 with 93 for his high single. Capt. Jim Christie led with 111 and 278.

The Wardens tripped up the Masters for three points. "Ev" Collins was in rare form and toppled the maples for 294. His 113 was the high single of the night. Roy Hardie, captain of the Masters, showed no ill effects of his hurried trip from the Lancaster to the Shawshien alleys and was just 2 pins shy of an even 300. His support was ragged. The Marshals were lucky to have Capt. Dave Preston in form for none of the others with the exception of Wiswall gave much help. They sent the Stewards down for the count of three with Preston leading at 107 and 296. The head and tail of the Stewards were the high rollers. Temple and Capt. Batcheller each rolled a single of 104 but the "lesser" Kirk carried off triple honors with 279. The scores:
